

Skills for the green transition: What Strengths, Weaknesses, Opportunities and Threats do you see in your city/region?
Participate in the S.W.O.T:

Acknowledging weaknesses – what needs to be addressed?

134 responses

What opportunities do you see in your region/city?

87 responses

make empty farms available hydrogen established nature experiences
energy investments
growth of tourism
storytelling
wind power
renewables
stability
potential for growth
natural resources
placebased potential
good life
renewable energy
friendly people
critical minerals
green region
friendly environment
political stable region

sustainable tourism green transition
international tourism forestry investments industrial establishment digital competence
nature
the good life
population growth
close to nature
climate changes
green hydrogen
energy transition
digital education
security
green energy
space industry
digital skills easy living
healthy environment
value-chain climbing strategic minerals low cost of living

large job opportunities
cooperation
green and healthy surround energy
rural living
rural areas
space
things to do hydrogen
use of robots
new technology
marine resources
health environment
research facilities

job offers datacenters
saftey
specialize flexibility
marker
culture
spate
hydrogen
tourism and nature
cooperation
energy
cooperation
energy
cooperation

tourism
friendly environment
health environment
research facilities

What do you see as the biggest threats related to skills for the green transition?

92 responses

centralised policies
high public costs
global state aid race
slow investments
the lack of knowledge
not getting workforce
tourism
public funding
financial resources centralization
lack of regional policy lack of policies
eu policies
de-globalisation populism
tourists
centralised government
demographics
lack of competence
skills supply
environmental changes
polarization of society
administrative strains
geopolitical tensions
better known competition
centralised government
lack of housing
lack of investors
fast european legislation
spatial planning
lack of own capacity
lack of investment
high pressure on nature hate brexit
lack of cohesion
widening gaps
nimby
lack of workforce
lack of funding
climate change
lack of investments
slow government
sense of colonialism
hoax centralisation
tourists
available small farms
arctic paradox
foreign ownership climatr change
available houses
lack of investors
fast european legislation
spatial planning
lack of own capacity
administrative strains
geopolitical tensions
better known competition
centralised government
lack of competence
skills supply
environmental changes
polarization of society
administrative strains
geopolitical tensions
better known competition
centralised government
lack of competence
skills supply
environmental changes
polarization of society

Action points – what's next?

4 responses

Continue to collaborate

Projects and funding

Create common visions local, regional, national and EU level

The structural funds are extremely important

3

